

Choosing the Right CDL Training for You

Real, Late-Model Trucks: The best way to train is on actual trucks that were recently manufactured—and that’s what we do at TDI. But that doesn’t stop other schools from using older trucks that frequently break down and can’t be driven—or, even worse, simulators.	✓
Automatic AND Manual Transmission: Plenty of schools only train students on automatic transmission—without warning them that they won’t be allowed to take on jobs that require manual driving. We make sure you’re ready for a full range of truck driving jobs.	✓
On-Site Testing: We offer immediate third-party CDL testing at every campus where state law allows it. If your school doesn’t, you could wait weeks if not months for an off-site appointment, preventing you from starting a job and earning money.	✓
Choosing Your Employer: Schools that have a contract with a specific carrier don’t give you other options. At TDI, we have strong relationships with 20+ major carriers to help you find a job—without any obligations or contracts.	✓
Lifetime Job Placement Assistance: We’re proud to provide job placement assistance throughout your entire career—not just at graduation. With an over 80% placement rate, we’re confident we can help you start your career.	✓
Classes Starting Every Week: Just because you’re ready to start doesn’t mean your CDL school is. Don’t get stuck waiting weeks or even months for a new class to begin. TDI has new classes starting every week so you can get on the road and start earning quickly.	✓
Daytime, Weekday Classes: At first glance, many students are drawn to the convenience of weekend and nighttime classes. But it takes daily practice to learn truck driving, and daytime conditions are safest for new drivers. That’s why TDI uses a 15-day program to get you on the road in just 3 weeks.	✓
Permanent Campuses: You might not find out until your first day of class that you’re actually training from a trailer that moves from place to place. We believe the best learning happens on permanent campuses like ours, complete with full driving ranges, classrooms, and dedicated staff.	✓
Small Classroom Size: Other schools often pack 20 students or more in a classroom. With so many students, it’s hard to give everyone the attention they need. At TDI, we prioritize small classroom environments so no student is left behind.	✓
DOT Physical Included in Tuition: Some schools require you to have a DOT physical before you enroll, taking time and money. With TDI, it’s included in your tuition.	✓
CDL Permit Included in Training: Like the DOT exam, many schools task you with spending time and energy getting your CDL permit on your own before enrolling. We streamline the process by including it in your training.	✓
